AN INDIAN AGENT SHOOTS ONE OF HIS TRIBE.

The First Fatal Quarrel Between the Molders and Foundry Owners—A Former Prominent Man Kills Himself—The Louisiana Lottery Charter Granted.

HELENA, MONT., June 27.—News has just come from the Cheyenne agency, that Jules, the Seminole agency interpreter, has killed a Cheyenne Indian. It was the issue of the day, and the Indians were gathered at the agency in large numbers. The Seminoles discharge had been asked for by the Cheyennes. They threatened agent Upshaw that if the Seminole acted as interpreter at another issue they would kill the interpreter and throw Upshaw out of the issue house. Upshaw knowing that the Seminole was guiltless of any offence and fearing if he discharged him at the Indians request they would then demand and insist on the discharge of every other employee distasteful to them, refused. One of the Cheyennes had an altercation with a Seminole, and the Cheyennes becoming threatening, the Seminole shot and killed the Indian who was about to shoot him. The Seminole surrendered to Major Carroll, but the Indians demanded his return to them, and threatened to take him away. As Carroll has three troops of cavalry, there is not much danger of this. Those present at the killing say it was done in self-defence. A short time ago the Cheyenne attempted to take Upshaw's life. The deputy sheriff and coroner have gone to the scene.

A Labor Difficulty Results in a Death.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Edward Coogan, a molder apprentice, who was employed in the Vulcan Iron Works, was shot and almost instantly killed about 6:45 o'clock this morning by Jas. W. Kerr, of the firm of Steiger & Kerr, proprietors of the Occidental foundry. The shooting was the outgrowth of an assault made on C. J. Clausen, a nonunion molder. Clausen and Kerr were assaulted by the crowd of strikers and when they were being worsted Kerr drew his revolver and fired one shot. The bullet struck young Coogan and he died on the way to the receiving hospital. It is said by some that Coogan was on the opposite side of the street at the time he was shot, and that he was not in the assaulting party. Kerr was arrested and charged with murder.

A Lunatic's Swim.

INDEPENDENCE, Ia., June 27.—A lunatic named W. J. Blackett, escaped from an insane hospital at this place on Wednesday afternoon and going to the river on the outskirts of the city, undressed and proceeded to take a bath. This was about three o'clock. At seven o'clock, persons at Quasqueton, about twenty miles below here on the river, telephoned up that a nude man had gone over the dam at that place alive, and had then proceeded on his way down stream, and that they had procured a boat and captured him about a mile below the village. Blackett was sent for and taken back the same night. When captured he was nearly exhausted and probably could not have held out half an hour longer. He seemed to be quite rational, and said that he intended to swim till his strength gave out and then drown.

Old, But Criminal.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 27.—Lucien W. Sperry, one of New Haven's most prominent citizens, not many years since, shot and killed himself this morning at 11 o'clock. He was 70 years old and served the city as mayor and represented it in the Legislature. He was a descendant of one of the earliest families of New Haven and was a brother of Postmaster N. D. Sperry. The suicide was caused by financial troubles. Sperry some years ago was appointed trustee of an estate valued at $16,000. Within the past few weeks his relatives have been trying to get control of the estate and Sperry was ordered by the court to render an account. He could account for but $7000, and was practically adjudged an embezzler and would probably have been arrested had he not shot himself. Besides this he had worsted several men in different ways to the extent of several thousand dollars and indeed owed at least $50,000 of criminal indebtedness without a dollar with which to clear himself. Sperry always lived in fine style. The suicide caused a sensation as he shot himself in a house which is on one of the most fashionable portions of Orange street.

A Strange Assault.

NORWICH, June 27.—A strange night assault was perpetrated at Colchester, a village sixteen miles north of this city, the other day, the motive for which, and identity of the ruffian being still a mystery. After Henry Miller, a well to do and respected citizen of Colchester, had returned to town about ten o'clock, he left his wife at the gate and took the team to the barn. He had put his horses in the stable and was closing the stable door when he was assaulted by a man secreted near the barn who struck him on the head with a heavy club several feet long. He was twice struck, the second blow breaking the club and felling Miller to the ground. The blows made two ugly gashes in his scalp. He got up and started to run, and when a little more than half way to the house was overtaken by the ruffian and knocked down again. The man ran between him and the door of the house and shouted "now I will shoot you," and fired a shot before Miller could get up. The ball, which was of 32 calibre, struck his left arm about five inches below the shoulder and passed upward and came out below the collar bone, making a track five inches in length. As Miller rose and started to run again, he was fired at a second time, the pistol being not more than a foot from his head. It went through the window of a work shop near by lodging in a ash plank. Then Miller ran for the house, the assassin following to the door. Miller pulled the door behind him and called for his revolver, but the villain had fled and was seen no more. Mrs. Miller heard the cries of her husband during his struggle to get away from his assailant, and rushed to the door asking what was the matter. The assassin yelled back, "Stop your noise or I'll shoot you." This was just before he fired at Miller. The shots followed in quick succession. Miller's wounds were not dressed till the following morning. His arm is badly bruised. No motive can be assigned for the murderous assault and the assailant is not known.

The Lottery Wins.

BATON ROUGE, June 26.—The lottery bill, which provides for the submission to a vote of the people of an amendment to the constitution granting an extension of its charter to the Louisiana Lottery Company, passed the House this afternoon by 66 to 29. It is understood that the Senate will amend the bill by increasing the amount to be paid annually from $1,000,000 to $1,125,000.

Tried and Proved Successful.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Capt. Henry Erban, President of the trial board of the cruiser Philadelphia, which made her initial trial trip yesterday, telegraphed to Secretary Tracy this morning that it was highly satisfactory in every way. The speed of the Philadelphia was exceptionally high, and the vessel had returned to the shipyard. No details of the trip are given, but the navy department officials are sanguine that the official report of the trial board will fully confirm the brief dispatch and published reports which appeared in print this morning.

Very Fast.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 27.—The new cruiser Philadelphia returned in triumph this morning, after having demonstrated that she is the fastest war ship afloat. She arrived at Cramp's wharf promptly at 9 o'clock, thus far shown to have made 19.6 knots per hour over eighty miles of official course. Her builders will consequently reap a reward of at least $15,000 as premiums over and above the contract price. When the corrected figures are made public, and allowance is made for the fact that the wind and tide were against a fair and square test, the sum will be increased.

College Race Postponed.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 27.—At eleven o'clock white caps were rolling down the river in a manner more suggestive of a yacht than a shell race. The referee's boat, however, steamed up the river, and after waiting more than hour, Bolton, the referee, announced the Harvard-Columbia freshman race postponed until after the Yale-Harvard race this evening.

A Victory for the Officials.

CHICAGO, June 27.—General Superintendent Sullivan's ultimatum, refusing to discharge Division Superintendent Russell, was laid before the striking employees of the Illinois Central at a general meeting held in secret this morning. The session began at 9:15 o'clock, Grand Master Williams of the Switchmen's Brotherhood being present. The general opinion is that the men will decide to declare the strike off.

Another Opium Seizure.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—The custom-house seachers this morning discovered ten 5-tael tins of opium on board the steamer Willamette, which arrived last night from Victoria with a cargo of coal. No owner could be found, and no arrests were made.

The President Elected.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Ex-Senator Palmer, of Michigan, was this morning unanimously elected president of the World's Columbian exposition.

THE CAPITAL.

Deputy Minister Burgess to Investigate B. C. Settlers' Claims.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 27.—A. M. Burgess, Deputy Minister of the Interior, leaves for Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia. In addition to other things he will inquire into old settlers' claims on Vancouver Island.

Hon. E. Dewdney goes to Cape Breton Island early next week, and will leave for Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia, immediately on his return.

ORIENTAL NOTES.

Latest Advices From the Flowery Kingdom—A Big Deal On.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—The steamer City Rio de Janeiro arrived from Hong Kong and Yokohama this morning bringing the following advices:

It is rumored that certain foreigners in Peking, acting in concert with Chang, the late Minister to Washington, have been endeavoring to put a big thing through in Peking after the style of the famous Milkewitz concessions; most of the money required is coming from America. Nothing definite, however, seems to have been accomplished yet.

The proposal to establish tea warehouses at Foo Chow to enable up country tea men to sell their teas direct to foreigners is again mooted. It is calculated teas will pass into the hands of foreign dealers by this means and at greatly reduced cost.

Houses, animals and crops have been destroyed by severe hail storms at Rae Chow, China.

Dangers of the Deep.

LONDON, June 27.—The Dutch steamer Prince Frederick, from Amsterdam, was sunk on the night of the 25th by collision with the British steamer Morpessa. The collision occurred during a dense fog. The Morpessa arrived at Falmouth with her bow stove in and her fore peak full of water. She had on board the crew and ninety-three passengers of the sunken vessel. Six passengers were drowned.

LONDON, June 27.—The details of the gales on the Scotch coast this week show that nine vessels have been wrecked and 53 lives lost.

HOME AND FOREIGN.

HOUSES AND CROPS DESTROYED IN RAE CHOO CHINA.

No Fear of Frost in the Northwest—Items of Interest From Ottawa—Terrible Gales on the Scotch Coast—The Surrender of the Licensing Bill.

MONTREAL, June 27.—The Gazette says: "A gentleman who has had large experience in the northwest, gives it as his opinion that the northwest crops this year will be in no danger from frost. The observations of the oldest inhabitants is that frost only comes with the full of the moon, and as luna does not show the entire breadth of her countenance this harvest season until the 29th of August, there will be plenty of time to secure the crops before frost is to be looked for."

The Licensing Bill Surrender.

LONDON, June 26.—Most of the Tory newspapers swallow the action of the government in surrendering the compensation clauses of the license bill, though it does not require phenomenal keenness of perception to discover that the process of deglutition was extremely difficult and most unwilling. Several of these journals attempt to make it appear that the withdrawal clause was due entirely to necessity which became apparent to the government, of relieving the pressure of parliamentary business, but others are not disposed to stultify themselves to that extent. The Standard and Telegraph make no attempt to conceal their disgust, and their growls will necessarily have considerable influence in increasing the tory disapproval of the government's display of weakness. These journals plainly intimate to the ministry that it was most unwise on their part to make so ungrateful an attempt to cover up their defeat in the house the other day, and even go so far as to accuse the government of cowardice. But if the conservative papers are chagrined, publicans are furious. They had prepared a monster petition in favor of the abandoned clause, to which they had obtained 500,000 signatures. This they had intended to present to parliament as an expression of the immense popularity of the measure, and their exasperation at the government's faintheartedness at the first rebuff will doubtless make itself felt in the next election. Mr. Balfour now admits that he always opposed the licensing clauses and that he is glad they have been disposed of by the action of the government.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS.

The Promotions, Prize List and Exercises held To-day.

The examination of the three divisions of the High School took place this afternoon, a number of ladies being present. Among the gentlemen present were Trustees Hayward, Erskine and Mallandaine, the Inspector, Lieutenant Lang, Messrs. Calder, Halliday, Worlock and Lovell. A programme of recitations, etc., having been gone through, the promotion and prize lists were read.

Master E. Powell was awarded the Governor-General's medal for the highest pupil in the high school, and Master Fraser a prize awarded by Hon. John Robson for the highest in the Second Division.

Inspector Wilson, in the absence of Superintendent Pope, announced the promotions and took occasion to speak of the general good showing of the school. He first pointed out to those present that they must not draw an impression from the marks received by the different classes, as each class had different papers to answer. The competition for first place in the first division had been very keen. He therefore must congratulate Master Powell on the showing he had made, and the prize he had won solely by his own efforts. His attention to his studies had not been lost sight of by the department, nor by himself personally, and he hoped that Master Powell would look back upon his school work with much pleasure.

The medal presented by J. N. Muir to the second highest in the school, was won by one of the girls. Miss Cameron, at this stage of the proceedings, stepped forward and presented an address, accompanied by a silver water set, to Miss Forrest, the retiring teacher of James Bay Ward school.

Mr. Wilson thanked the teachers who had made the presentation, on behalf of Miss Forest.

Trustee Hayward, on being called upon, said that he was sorry to see that so few of Victoria's citizens, especially the men, attended the closing examinations of the high school. He was also sorry to notice the absence of the Honorable the Minister of Education, the Superintendent and also the clergy, who seemed to have during the last few years lacked interest in school work. The longer he remained a trustee the more he had noticed the great responsibility that rested upon the board's shoulders, especially when their work referred to unpleasant cases that had to be dealt with harshly and as the number of children increased. In reference to the new board, he said that the city had made a good choice, and the new members, along with the old, would all act up to their own convictions.

Mr. Mallandaine referred to the progress made and gave the pupils advice as to their future after they had left school or gone into business, or whatever they intended to follow. He concluded by wishing all a very happy vacation.

Trustee Erskine agreed with Trustee Hayward in regard to the absence of the Minister and Superintendent of Education, but said as they were absent those present would have to do without them, and no doubt the pupils would rather have it so, as the term would come to an end sooner than if they were present. The number of prizes given showed well for the diligence and advance of the pupils. He referred to a university training that many of the pupils present were very likely looking forward to, and he hoped that before many years they would not have to go out of British Columbia to get a thorough education.

F. H. Worlock congratulated the pupils and teachers on the showing made and he was sure the latter deserved a great deal of credit. He wished them all a pleasant holiday.

The pupils then sang "God Save the Queen," after which they left the school one and all evidently glad that the vacation had come.

The teachers of the high school beg to thank the following ladies and gentlemen for prizes kindly donated: Hon. John Robson, Dr. Powell, Mrs. McMicking, J. N. Muir, B. A., T. N. Hibben & Co., and A Friend.

CHAPTER XIV.

VERY SHORT, BUT IN WHICH "X" TAKES A GEOGRAPHICAL VALUE.

Very luckily for J. T. Maston, the Federal Government received the following telegram sent by the American Consul stationed at Zanzibar:

To John S. Wright, Minister of State, Washington, U. S. A.

ZANZIBAR, Sept. 13, 5 a. m. (local time.)—Great works are being executed in the Wamasai, south of the chain of Kilimanjaro. For eight months President Barbicane and Captain Nicholl have been established there with a great number of black help under the authority of Sultan Bali-Bali. This is brought to the knowledge of the Government by its devoted

RICHARD W. TRUST, Consul.

And this was how the secret of J. T. Maston became known. And, therefore, were the secretary of the gun club still in prison he could not have been hanged.

But, after all, who knows whether he would not rather have been glad to meet with death in the full glory of his life than to live on with all the chances of disappointment.

CHAPTER XV.

WHICH CONTAINS A FEW INTERESTING DETAILS FOR THE INHABITANTS OF THE EARTHLY SPHERE.

Finally the Government of Washington had found out the place where Barbicane, & Co. were operating. Should they doubt the authenticity of this cable? No, that was not reasonable. The Consul at Zanzibar was a very reliable person, and his information could be accepted without doubt. It was further corroborated by later telegrams. It was really in the center of the region of Kilimanjaro in the African Wamasai, a little under the equatorial line, where the engineers of the N. P. P. A. were going to accomplish their gigantic work.

How could they have secretly reached this lost country, at the foot of the celebrated mountain, discovered in 1849 by Drs. Rebviani and Krapf, ascended by the travelers Otto Ehlers and Abbot? How were they able to establish their workshops there, erect a foundry and bring a large number of help, or at least enough to succeed? How had they been able to establish friendly relations with the dangerous tribes of the country and their sovereigns, as cunning as they were cruel?

"GREAT SCOTT!" SAWING THE AIR WITH HIS IRON HAND.

This we did not know. And perhaps it would never be known, as there were only a few days left before the 22d of September would arrive. J. T. Maston heard from Mrs. Evangelina Scorbitt that the mystery of Kilimanjaro had been unveiled by a telegram sent from Zanzibar. "Great Scott!" he exclaimed, sawing the air with his iron hand. "Well, we do not travel by telegram yet, nor by the telephone, and in six days the matter will be finished."

Those who saw and heard this remarkable man utter these words were astonished at the energy in the old gunner.

J. T. Maston was right. There was no time left to send agents to Wamasai with orders to arrest President Barbicane. They would even have been too late had they departed from Algiers or Egypt, even from Aden, Madagascar or Zanzibar, as they would have met thousands of difficulties in this mountainous region, and perhaps they would have met with an army composed of followers of the Sultan, who was interested in the matter. Therefore all hope of preventing this operation had to be given up. But if prevention was impossible nothing seemed more easy than the figuring out of the terrible consequences, as the exact situation of "x" was now known. This problem was difficult enough, but all algebraists and mathematicians of large reputation ought to be able to solve it. As the cable of the Consul of Zanzibar had been sent direct to the Minister of State at Washington, the Federal Government wanted to keep it secret at first. They wished as well that its contents were published all over the country, so that they could indicate what the results would be of this displacement of the axis and the uprising of the oceans, and thus the inhabitants of the world might learn which place of refuge was open to them according to the section of the globe in which they lived. And it is easy to understand how anxious the people were to learn their fate.

On the 14th of September the cable dispatch was sent to the office of the observatory at Washington, with orders to figure out the final consequences upon geographical locations. Two days afterwards the problem was all worked out. The Old World was notified of the results by cable and the New World by telegram. After this calculation had been published by thousands of papers, it was the only thing talked of in the great cities and elsewhere. What will happen? This was the question which every body was asking at every point of the globe.

The following was the notice made by the observatory at Washington:

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The operation which is being tried by President Barbicane and Captain Nicholl is as follows:

The production of a recoil on the 22d of September at midnight by means of a cannon a million times larger in volume than the cannon of twenty-seven centimeters, throwing a projectile of 180,000 tons, with a powder giving it a velocity of 2,800 kilometers.

Now, if this shooting takes place below the equatorial line, nearly on the 34th degree of latitude west of the meridian of Paris, at the foot of Kilimanjaro, and if it is directed toward the south, these are the mechanical effects which it will have on the earth's sphere: Instantly, in consequence of the shock acting with the daily movement, a new axis will be formed, and as the old axis will be displaced to the amount of 23 degrees and 28 minutes, according to the figures obtained by J. T. Maston, the new axis will be perpendicular to the direction of the ecliptic.

Which point will the new axis start from? As the point of shooting is known, it has been easy to calculate this.

In the North the extremity of the new axis will be situated between Greenland and Grinnelland, exactly at that part of Baffin's Sea were it cuts the Arctic Polar circle. In the South it will be on the line of the antarctic circle, a few degrees east of Adelialand. Under these conditions a new zero meridian, starting from the North Pole, will pass through Dublin in Ireland, Paris in France, Palermo in Sicily, the Gulf of Grand Syrte on the coast of Tripoli, Obed in Darfur, the mountain chain of Kilimanjaro, Madagascar; the Herguelen Island, in the Central Pacific; the new antarctic pole, the antipodes of Paris, Cook Island, the Island of Quadra, Vancouver, on the margin of British Columbia; across North America to Melville Island, in the neighborhood of the North Pole.

In connection with this new axis of rotation, starting from Baffin's Bay in the North to Adelialand in the South, a new equator will be formed above which the sun will travel without ever changing his daily course. The equinoctial line will cross the Kilimanjaro, at Wamasai, the Indian Ocean, Goa and Chicacola, a little below Calcutta in India, Mandalay in the Kingdom of Siam, Kesho in Tonquin, Hong Kong in China, Risa Island, Marshall Island, Gaspar Rico, Walker Island in the Pacific, the Cordilleras in the Argentine Republic, Rio de Janeiro in Brazil, the islands of Trinity and St. Helena in the Atlantic Ocean, St. Paul de Loando on the Congo, and finally it will meet again in the territories of Wamasai, back of Kilimanjaro. This new equator being thus determined by the creation of the new axis, it became possible to calculate the changes of the ocean-tides, which was so important for the security of the inhabitants of the earth. It is just to observe that the directors of the North Polar Practical Association had taken measures to weaken the shock as much as possible. If the shooting had been toward the north the consequences of it would have been much more disastrous for the more civilized parts of the earth. On the other hand, shooting towards the south the consequences would only be felt most in parts less populated and less civilized. The careful calculations made showed how the waters would be distributed when thrown out of their beds by the flattening of the sphere around the new Poles. The globe would be divided by two great circles, intersecting in a right angle at Kilimanjaro, and at its antipodes in the equinoctial ocean. This would form four sections, two in the north and two in the south, separated by the lines upon which the ocean upheaval would be zero.

In the Northern hemisphere: The first section west of Kilimanjaro would take in Africa from the Congo to Egypt, Europe from Turkey to Greenland, America from British Columbia to Peru and from Brazil as high as San Salvador, and finally the whole Northern Atlantic Ocean and the largest part of the temperate Atlantic zone.

The second section, east of Kilimanjaro, would include the greater part of Europe from the Black Sea to Sweden, European and Asiatic Russia, Arabia, nearly the whole of India, Persia, Beloochistan, Afghanistan, Turkestan, the Celestial Empire, Mongolia, Japan, Corea, the Black Sea, the Caspian Sea, the greater part of the Pacific Ocean, the territories of Alaska in North America and also the Polar region which belonged to the American society—North Polar Practical Association.

The Southern hemisphere would embrace the third section east of Kilimanjaro, which would include Madagascar, the islands of Marion, Kerguelen, Maurice, Reunion and all the islands of the Indian Ocean, the Antarctic Ocean (as far as the new Pole), half the island of Malacca, Java, Sumatra, Borneo, the islands of Sonde, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea, New Caledonia, all the northern parts of the Pacific and its numerous archipelagos, nearly up to the 160th meridian.

The fourth section, west of Kilimanjaro, would comprise the southern part of Africa, from the Congo and the canal of Mozambique to the Cape of Good Hope, the Southern Atlantic Ocean to the 50th parallel, all South America from Pernambuco and Lima, Bolivia, Paraguay, Uruguay, the Argentine Republic, Patagonia, the Fire Islands, the Malouine Islands, Sandwich and Shetland Islands and the southern part of the Pacific Ocean east of the present 160th degree of latitude.

These would be the four sections, separated by the line of zero in calculating the sea-level changes. Now, the question was to indicate the effects produced on the surface of the four sections in consequence of the displacements of the oceans.

Upon each of these sections there was a central point on which the effect would be at a maximum, either by the oceans rising up or by the waters retiring entirely. The calculations of J. T. Maston had established without a doubt that at each of these maxima points the greatest height obtained would be 8,415 meters. It was therefore certain that the consequences would be most severe against the security of those points through the operation carried out by Barbicane & Co. The two effects may be considered separate in their action.

In two of the sections situated opposite each other in the Northern hemisphere and in the Southern as well, the oceans would retreat and invade the two other sections, opposing each other in each of the two hemispheres.

In the first section: The Atlantic Ocean would be nearly entirely emptied and the maximum point of depression being nearly at the region of Bermuda, where the ground would appear, if the depth of the ocean was inferior at that point to 8,415 meters. Consequently between Europe and America vast territories would be discovered which the United States, England, France, Spain and Portugal could claim, according to the geographical situation, as these powers might wish to do. It must be observed that in consequence of the falling of the oceans the air will also fall equally as much. Therefore the barometric pressure of Europe and that of America will be modified to such an extent that cities situated even 20 or 30 degrees from the maximum points would only have the quantity of air which is now actually found in a height of one league in the atmosphere. The principal cities, such as New York, Philadelphia, Charleston, Panama, Lisbon, Madrid, Paris, London, Edinburgh, Dublin, Cairo, Constantinople, Dantzig, Stockholm, on one side and the cities corresponding in latitude on the other side would keep their normal position with regard to the general level of the air. In regard to Bermuda, air would be missing there the same as it would be wanting to aeronauts who go higher than 8,000 meters. Therefore it would be impossible to live there.

The same effect would obtain in the opposite section, which would contain the Indian Ocean, Australia and a part of the Pacific Ocean, which would be thrown partly on the southern sea-coasts of Australia.

The air into which they would be thrown would be very clear; there was no doubt on that point, but it would not be dense enough for human wants.

These in general were a part of the modifications which would take place in the two sections in which the oceans would be more or less emptied. There would undoubtedly appear new islands and mountains in such parts as the water did not entirely abandon.

But if the diminution of the thickness of the air did not bring enough inconveniences to those parts of the new continents raised to the high zones of the atmosphere, what was to be the case of those parts which the irruption of waters put below the surface? We may still breathe under the diminished pressure of air below the atmospheric pressure. On the contrary, under a very few inches of water we can not breathe at all, and this was the condition in which the other two sections found themselves. In the section northwest of Kilimanjaro the maximum point would be at Yakoust, in Siberia.

From this city submerged 8,415 meters under the water, less its present actual altitude, the liquid mass, decreasing, would extend to the neutral lines, drowning the greater part of Asiatic Russia and of India, of China, of Japan and of American Alaska, to the Behring Sea. In regard to St. Petersburg and Moscow on one side, and Calcutta, Bangkok, Saigon, Pekin, Hong Kong and Yeddo on the other side, these cities would disappear under a cover of water sufficient to drown all Russians, Hindoos, Siamese, Cochin Chinese, Chinese and Japanese, if they did not have time to emigrate before the catastrophe.

In the section southeast of Kilimanjaro the disasters would be equally marked. This section is in a great part covered by the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, the level of which would raise 8,415 meters at the archipelagos of the Azores. All this vast area would disappear under this artificial deluge, among others the angle of Southern Africa from Guinea and Kilimanjaro to the Cape of Good Hope, and the triangle of South America formed by Peru, Central Brazil, Chili and the Argentine Republic, as far as Terre del Fuego and Cape Horn. The Patagonians, high as they are located, would not escape this immersion, and would not even have opportunity of taking refuge on that part of the Andes, as the highest points of that range would not be visible at all in this part of the globe.

This, then, must be the result, the lowering of the upper and raising of the lower sections, and an entirely new surface to the oceans, produced by the corruscations in the surface of the earth's sphere. Such were the happenings which would result and against which the people of this world had no help if they could not promptly stop Barbicane & Co. in their criminal attempt.

WHEELING.

A long line of twenty wheelmen went down to the quiet burg of Esquimalt last evening, enjoying a very pleasant run, the roads being fairly good. Arriving at Esquimalt some manoeuvers were gone through by the wheelmen, who were then invited by host Fisher, to partake of the hospitality of the Globe Hotel. The invitation was accepted as heartily as it was given, the boys being unanimous in the opinion that Mr. and Mrs. Fisher are "all right."

A UNIQUE CHALLENGE.

The great Seattle game of ball between the real estate men and the lawyers has been the cause of a great deal of comment as to the abilities of the players. Ald. Jones of Seattle, who thinks little of either team, moved the following resolution at the board meeting on Thursday evening, it being duly adopted:

WHEREAS, Our national game of baseball is exciting the attention of the public to such an extent that the dignified citizens of our city, irrespective of profession, trade or business, have seen fit to engage in the baseball business to such an extent as to make the champions of this game in our city heroes long to be remembered; and whereas the real estate men and lawyers of this city have chosen nine each of their number to wage a battle for the championship of the Pacific coast between themselves, and have idly boasted that no body or class of our citizens, dare engage in a contest against nine of their number for this championship; and whereas the common council of the city of Seattle, recognizing the fact that the real estate men and lawyers aforesaid cannot play the said game with any degree of science whatever, and that their said pretentions are made for the sole purpose of intimidating our citizens in general and this body in particular.

It is therefore resolved by the common council of said city that it does hereby publicly challenge the winning nine of said baseball teams composed of real estate men and lawyers aforesaid to engage in a contest with this honorable body for the prize aforesaid at such time and place as may be named by the successful team of real estate men or lawyers aforesaid, and that said contest on the part of said council be waged with such fierceness and precision as to completely annihilate the said real estate and lawyer baseball teams aforesaid.

We do pledge our sacred honors to defend, at all hazards, the reputation of said city. The proceeds to be applied to the library fund.

SYDNEY, June 25.—Owing to a dispute over Monday's race, in which O'Connor was defeated by Stansbury, the two oarsmen will row again Monday.

WRESTLING.

The best two in three falls, mixed match, between the Jap and Cameron at Vancouver, was won by the latter. The Jap has challenged Cameron to a Graeco-Roman contest for $500. Cameron has accepted.

FOOT RACE.

A foot race for 115 yards, between Messrs. J. H. Sluggett and Herbert E. Peck, for $500 each, has been arranged to take place on August 9th at Nanaimo. A forfeit of $75 each has been placed at the Free Press office.

MAPLE LEAFS VS. JAMES BAYS.

The Victorians, as appears by this morning's Colonist, assert that they have been unjustly used by the James Bays. On the contrary, it is the Bays who can alone say that. It is perfectly true that at the end of last year there was one game to be decided between the Maple Leafs and James Bay nines for the championship trophies of 1889. During the early part of 1890 the Maple Leaf and Mayflower clubs amalgamated under the name of the Victorians, and they now lay claim to the trophies. Now I should like to know how the Victorians can make such a claim, when they know perfectly well the Bays defeated their best nine on the 10th May, 1890, by 32 runs to 4, which entirely settled the championship question of 1889. The Victorians now challenge the Bays to play a single game to-morrow to decide a settled question, which we decline to accept, but the Bays are perfectly willing to waive their rights and play the best three games out of five for the trophies of 1889 and the championship of 1890. It is out of all reason that one single game should decide the championship of 1890, and I am sure that every sporting man is of my opinion. Now if the proposition the Bays have made is not fair and honorable I should like to know what is. The Bays, like their opponents, will be at the Caledonia grounds to-morrow at 2:30 to play ball, that game to be one of the five games.

JAMES BAY.

A COMING FIGHT.

LONDON, June 27.—All indications are that the fight at the Pelican Club to-night between Dixon and Wallace will be a memorable one. Both men men are in the pink of condition and the Pelicans believe that the bantam championship of the world will not be established without a long and desperate contest. Betting to-day is even.

A Cause Celebre.

An unusual action has been taken in Dublin against a railway company. An infant girl named Walker, who was born at the time of an accident, forms the grounds for the action. The railroad accident occurred in June, 1888. The child's mother was in a delicate condition at the time, and a passenger on the train when the accident occurred. The mother received a terrible shock, and the child was born a cripple and seriously afflicted. Medical experts trace directly to the mother's nervous prostration, following and a result of the collision. With these facts as a basis, a suit for damages has been brought by the father of the Walker child, as his child's guardian. It is likely to become a cause celebre, and the opinion in legal circles is, that if the infant wins her case, it will be an expensive precedent for the railways.

Sabbath Observance.

The Supreme Court of the United States will be asked to decide a case involving the constitutionality of the Sunday observance laws. A farmer named King, a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, was in the habit of working on his farm on Sunday, alleging to justify himself that his religion commanded him to observe Saturday and not Sunday as the Sabbath. However, he was charged with a breach of the Sabbath Observance Law of Tennessee, and a fine was imposed. It is the lawfulness of this proceeding that the Supreme Court will have to decide. Apart from technical questions of law, the position taken by Mr. King's friends will be that in a country where religious liberty prevails it is not the business of the State to select for its subjects the day of the week that they are to observe as sacred. To this the reply will probably be made that Sunday observance, as commanded by the law, is not a religious but a civil institution, designed for the benefit of the citizen, and that it would be impossible to enforce the law if each citizen were allowed to select his own Sabbath. The progress of the case will no doubt be watched with interest.—Globe.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottles by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. daw

MAYOR GRANT'S QUALIFICATION.

"The principle of single tax, to his mind suggested a fair and equitable basis of taxation, and to bring it into practical use it would no doubt remove many of the existing abuses under the present systems. The difficulty to apply it, to make it work, was here: A man has sold a piece of land and has the proceeds in the bank. Another man who has striven all his life to get a few dollars together, has purchased the other's land and put all his money into it. The new system coming into force, a problem which troubled him was, how to deal fairly with both men."

The foregoing, taken from the Colonist, represents Mayor GRANT on the single tax question, and if there is anything in it to show that that gentleman proposes to rob anybody, or is in the slightest degree favorable to the robbing of anybody of their land, it is not visible except to the distorted vision of the Colonist. Nobody disputes, or at least we do not know of any reputable writer on political economy who disputes the equitableness of single tax as set forth by HENRY GEORGE, provided the means can be found whereby the reversion of the land to the Government without loss to land owners and mortgagees can be accomplished. This is the rock over which men split. HENRY GEORGE, in "Progress and Poverty," holds that the land should be nationalized, regardless of the damage to individuals that would be inflicted. Few men are willing to accept so drastic a method of realizing single tax. Mayor GRANT, as his speech unequivocally shows, is not one of those men. The nationalization of land offers a remedy for landlordism and kindred ills, but how to bring it about without injury to thousands of people is the question. Let some method be proposed by which the land can be nationalized without injury to private owners and single tax, left to a plebiscite, would overwhelmingly carry in both England and America. Had Mayor GRANT expressed himself as a single taxist without the qualification we have noted, the attacks of the Colonist would have some justification in truth. With the qualification, however, Mayor GRANT is no more a single taxist than is the man who but for "these vile guns would have been a soldier."

FRENCH INTERESTS IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

Concerning the original treaty between England and France, by which the former acquired Canada, and the latter certain fishing privileges, the lobster at that time was unknown. Since then, however, he has burst into prominence as a marketable edible. The French want him and so do the Newfoundlers. SALISBURY contends that inasmuch as the lobster was an unknown fish at the time the old treaty was concluded, the French have no lawful right to appropriate him. France, on the other hand, holds that it is entitled to any subsequent developments in the fishing line that may chance to occur. A nice question this is to decide, although it should appear that France has the best of it. Still, as England offers to purchase French fishing interests off Newfoundland an agreement certainly ought to be reached. France, however, does not appear to be in the frame of mind which permits of the acceptance of these pacific overtures. Egypt sticks in France's craw, and the cession of Heligoland has quite upset her equanimity. French vanity is ruffled and unquestionably she would like to fight. This depends on the attitude of Russia. If as is rumored, Russia is ready to sustain the pretensions of the United States to Behring Sea, the latter accepting the offices of Russia in this respect we shall have a series of complications on hand which will scarcely be settled without an explosion. The clouds of war seem to be lowering and strange to say the re-appearance of the blue sky of peace depends largely on the nature of the solution of the Behring sea question. England and America at loggerheads is France's and Russia's opportunity. Provided, however, British-America relations remain undisturbed, England will be free to hold things down in Europe. Will the United States lend itself to a policy that will embarrass England? Time will tell.

SECRETARY BLAINE.

Judging from the New York Herald's account of the Behring Sea negotiations, we have in President HARRISON, instead of BLAINE, the great English lion tail-twister. HARRISON is the man who is credited with blocking negotiations, when all seemed favorable to a settlement. Of course, this being the Herald's story, it must be taken with a grain of salt. Nevertheless there is probably enough in it to convince the average British mind that BLAINE as an anglophobist is not near as bad as he has been painted. BLAINE during his short incumbency of the Secretary of Stateship under GARFIELD, and later through the medium of his speeches in his presidential campaign against CLEVELAND, gave evidence of having a strong foreign policy. His supposed antipathy to England, indeed, contributed largely to his defeat. Save in Maine, BLAINE was not popular in the New England states. In Massachusetts, especially, he was regarded a dangerous man. The New England States have always been conservative on all questions which threatened a rupture with England. BLAINE's subsequent career, if it has proved anything, proves conclusively that his pugnacity is tempered with discretion. Not once has he twisted the English lion's tail since having become HARRISON's chief adviser. England has been deceived in BLAINE, and his own countrymen but little less so. BLAINE may not be fond of England, but it is morally certain that he is in no wise inclined to goad John Bull without the best of reasons for it. In the meantime it is satisfactory to know that the United States is not prepared to back up the selfish pretensions of the Alaska Fur Company to the extent of an open rupture with Great Britain. The world, generally speaking, has few moral qualms in the matter of war. Men are by no means scarce both in England and the United States to whom war between the two countries would be a perfect godsend. But popular as the war would be in certain quarters, the cause for it would be inadequate. Such a war as that between the United States and England would be, should involve principles more vital and far reaching than the monopoly of catching a few hundred thousand fur-bearing seal.

HYPNOTISM.

Dr. JOSHUA THORNE, of Kansas City, thus defines hypnotism in a paper read by him before the Missouri Homœpathic society.

"This word 'hypnotism' is but a new and better term for certain physical phenomena which for eighty years were known as mesmerism.' The word includes all the phenomena that lie in the nervous system in its expression of mental or physic condition. When the mystery of hypnotism is solved, man then will know the relations which exist between the man and his body—the house he lives in. The history of hypnotism is the physic history of the race—all the mysteries of ancient temples, of ghost and witchcraft, second sight and animal magnetism, ecstatic trance, and frenzy of the prophets of old, and the oriental dervishes of to-day. Faith cure and mind reading, clairvoyance and spiritualism, are all included in the category of its phases. It is not a new force, but as old as life. It obtains not in man alone, but its powers and mandates govern all organic life, from the infusoria to the highest beings."

The doctor then proceeds to give facts from his own experience in the field of hypnotism. In the first case that he mentions we have that of a widow lady subject to acute mania, the paroxysms usually lasting from six to seven hours. This party when she first came under the doctor's care was very violent and and resisted his approach. Without her knowledge and in spite of her own efforts he threw her under the hypnotic influence to the degree of trance. In this condition she remained for over two hours, and in the so-called magnetic sleep for over eleven hours. From that day to now her mind has been sound and strong. The next case was that of a man who had been wounded on the knee, from the effects of which tetanus had supervened:

"I placed him in hypnotic sleep," says the doctor, "at 4 o'clock p.m., dressed the wound, removed pieces of bone, and directed him to sleep till 8 o'clock the next morning. At that hour Dr. Taylor and I were at his bedside. He awoke soon, having slept soundly all night. The tetanic spasms were gone. The young man soon got well."

Next we have the case of a prominent lawyer, who was troubled with insomnia, the result of chronic alcoholism. To quote the language of the doctor:

"For four months he had no proper sleep. Opium, chloral, and all drugs had lost their power over him. I found multiple neurosis, showing that the spine as well as the brain was involved. Nutrition had almost ceased. I requested him to submit to hypnotism. He said he thought it would kill him, and hoped it would. At my first seance he was put to sleep at 11 o'clock. He remained in a sound sleep until 8 the next morning. I kept him in bed for two weeks, putting him to sleep every night. He slept all the night without waking. I fed him carefully. He often went to sleep of himself in the daytime. He never asked for or received any stimulants. Since that time he has continued well. He eats and sleeps well; drinks no liquors. He says he has no desire for it. He has grown fleshy. The neuritis is cured. He, soon after the treatment, got married, and is now the father of three healthy children, and is getting rich. He loves the influence. I can point my finger at him, and he is at once under partial control. I never give him any medicine.

"These cases," (we have not given all that the doctor cited) "are typical ones," continued the doctor. The first insanity inherited from her father and transmitted to her children. The cure was rapid, and has stood the test nine years and maternity, with the climacteric season safely passed. The second case, paralysis agitans, is known to be no less obscure in pathology than hopeless in treatment. Still under this powerful but subtle influence, the disease yielded as if by an incantation. The third case differs from all the others in kind and in degree. Here we find the highest and most terrible form of reflex, involving the entire cerebro-spinal system in the most acute form. Still the intense nervous action is quieted in five minutes never to return. The fourth case, insomnia, with chronic alcoholism and multiple neuritis, indicates the influence of hypnotism over not only the physical conditions, but upon the moral also. This man was not only cured of insomnia and neuritis, but also of his insatiable love for stimulants.

"I leave the question in your hands, knowing as I do that many of you are more capable of the scientific investigation of the facts that I am or can be. I am not alone in the opinion that we have in hypnotism the highest illustration yet obtained of the 'similia similibus curantur.' The various stages of hypnotism, from conscious drowsiness to the fierce frenzy of trance, have many powers, all different in kind and curative degree. Hypnotism is not yet a 'cure all.' I have often failed for want of knowledge. The forms of disease in which I have succeeded best are those functional disturbances of the brain, spinal cord, or sympathetic nervous system in which the patient is abnormally susceptible to external impressions, and with an impaired power of will to resist their manifestations. In operating this dynamic power you enter the temple of the Most High. Do not use it like the charlatan and the mountebank for either show or to satisfy a morbid curiosity, for you are taking an immortal soul into your keeping. Except in rare cases, never operate without consent, and always before a witness. I have had strange experiences. I warn you. If you wish doctors, preachers and superstitious old women to drive you from your home and practice, tell people what you are doing."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Vancouver Telegram, after drawing a lurid contrast between what it would do and what the Government ought to have done re "SCHOOL ENDOWMENT," winds up with the declaration "that practical politics is what British Columbia wants at this stage." "Honest JOHN" will sniff at that remark. Recalling section 9 of the School Act, the Constitution Act, and the $200 deposit arrangement, he will remind the Telegram that these are practical measures, definite, and intended to give him a life lease of the "flesh pots." The Telegram's officiousness is adding insult to injury.

The Seattle Journal calls the Oregonian a "typographical blotting pad," for the reason that the latter remarks that "burglars and ruffians are busy in Seattle." The ill-concealed contempt of the Seattle newspapers, which for most part have donned brand new typographical suits, is not less marked than that of the dude for those of his fellow creatures whose toilette is less costly and elaborate. But the Oregonian can stand it. With all the homeliness of its typographical costume it carries a weight which its better dressed contemporaries have not yet attained. Perhaps, one of these days the Oregonian will don a new suit. What will the Journal call it then?

If Alderman HARRISON would make himself as conspicuous in the matter of having the streets rolled until they were fit for the passage of vehicles, as he is with reference to hygiene, he not only would earn the gratitude of a long suffering public, but he would be more in his element. The dumping of paving stones, or macadam, or whatever it is called, into the streets and leaving it there to be trod down by passing vehicles, constitutes a first class abuse. Go almost anywhere you will throughout the city, there is a pile of loosely dumped stones for somebody to drive or walk over. Between mud and broken stone the former is preferable. If one street roller is insufficient for this city let another be purchased. If the city is rich enough to subsidize private companies, it is rich enough to own two rollers. This straining at a gnat and swallowing an elephant kind of economy is getting to be monotonous.

The Colonist, as a Government supporter, is playing the lonest of lone hands. The News has politely requested it to reveal the Government's railway policy, while the Columbian in the matter of single tax has to say:

"If the Colonist would discuss the question reasonably and honestly in the meantime, instead of flying off into extremes and misrepresentations and misleading parallels, it might manage to retain some little reputation for sagacity, and serve its monopolistic masters just as well besides."

Caustic remarks such as these from old "illicums" indicate that mossbackery has fallen into disuetude. The sooner the Colonist turns over a new leaf the better for it, the illiterate it represents and its patrons generally. A philosophic dissertation on the fallacies of HENRY GEORGE would furnish entertaining reading. The rabid assertions of our contemporary only serve to make it a reproach and a laughing stock.

POLICE RULES.

To the Editor,—If free newspaper advertising will enrich a man, I feel that I am on the high road to wealth. I must confess, sir, that on account of the better part of three editorial columns of the Colonist being devoted to my humble self in its issue of this morning, I seem to be of more importance than I had any idea of. In fact I feel flattered.

I find in the columns referred to the following language: "Mayor Grant averred that the police could not enter a saloon while on duty, their rules forbade it under penalty of dismissal." Let us enquire who is responsible for these rules. During the time that ex-Mayor Fell occupied the chair, the present rules were formulated by ex-Councillor Higgins. A discussion, which lasted for several evenings, took place on the different principles contained in them. It will be remembered by the then councillors that I opposed the clauses which prevented the police from entering a saloon while on duty, holding as I did and do now, that no policeman is worthy of the position who could not be trusted, while on duty, to walk into a saloon, to generally see if those carrying on a saloon business were keeping within the law. Those holding Mr. Higgins' views were in the majority, hence the present rules. Respectfully, John Grant.

"CANADA, LAND OF THE MAPLE LEAF."

To the Editor,—You have published the words of a new song entitled "Canada, Land of the Maple Tree," a production, I understand, designed to be to Canada what "Rule Britannia" is to England and the "Star Spangled Banner" to the United States. The song, in point of sentiment, must, I think, prove disappointing. It not only pertains too much to vegetation, one weed in particular against whose cultivation there is directed a municipal ordinance, but the author advertises himself as a Tory of the superlative degree. In British Columbia the song will meet the approval of such men as Col. Prior, Col. Baker and Willis Bond. Men, however, who take a pride in Canada as Canada, and who feel that she should be the carver out of her own destiny will scarcely be able to swallow the "chorus," which assumes that Canada has no individuality. "Were Britons still," says the chorus. Sentiments such as this, laudable though it be, will scarcely find responsive echo in the heart of every Canadian. There is a growing belief that though we are Britons we make a much better appearance as Canadians. Following the poet a bit further, I find that he says: "No foreign power shall o'er us rule," etc. How, I would ask, can the poet reconcile this expression with the preceding words, "Britons still." According to Mr. Theodore Davie, Great Britain is a foreign power. If Theodore be correct then our Tory poet is sadly mixed and Mr. Davie for one will reject "Land of the Maple Tree," as peculiarly unfitted for a national hymn.

Coming down to a rhetorical treatment of the case. I cannot say that I approve of the phrase, "Scotia's Thistle 'wags' its head." "Wag," most anybody will admit, is but poorly adapted for heroic lines. I would advise the poet to substitute something else, and while he is at it to bear in mind that insignificant thistles, however dear to the Scottish heart, do not "wag" their heads majestically and grandly. If the thistle was a tree that mode of comparison would answer. A thistle cannot, without violating rhetorical rules and the laws of nature for that matter, wag its head "majestic, great and grand." Further on we find that "Ireland's Shamrock sings its songs of love, and mirth and glee." It will surprise most people to learn that the Shamrock is a vocalist. However, as this disregard of the law of metaphor is no more flagrant than that of the little thistle wagging its head "majestic, great and grand," nothing more may be said. It is to be regretted that a song which unquestionably has merit should lack true Canadian sentiment, together with rhetorical blemishes that would discredit a newspaper reporter. Judging of the poetry of the thing, I should suppose that the author was cut out for a horticulturist.

THE HOTEL QUESTION.

To the Editor,—The exhibition of selfishness on the part of a few of our hotel keepers in the last day or two is not surprising. On the contrary is quite natural. The spirit which prompts every little interest, which is effected by some stupendous undertaking, to cry out that it is being ruined is no new phenomena. But at the same time that does not prevent us from reasoning that great works which the public have for a long time demanded and which will confer great public benefits must receive some concessions. Capital, always timid, is doubly so when asked to assist in enterprises which experience does not show to have been remarkable for large dividends and therefore requires all the assistance that can be reasonably given. I do not think the arguments of the little hotel keepers against concessions being given to the Canada Western are any more forcible than were the pleading of the time honored ferryman against the suspension bridge because it would injure an old and long established business. As well might the mule driver rant against the modern railroad because it did away with pack trains and deprived him—one man—of his old way of making a living, notwithstanding that it conferred incalcuable benefits on thousands of other people. The objects of the ferryman and the mule driver are perfectly natural, but they cannot be entertained. What we aim at to-day is the greatest good to the greatest number.

JUVENILE ATTENDANT CAVALIERS.

A Mighty Useful Being for the Fashionable Married Woman.

Among the products of modern society there is none more remarkable than the juvenile attendant cavalier. A dozen rich and highly respectable New York matrons now provide themselves each with what she is pleased to call "a useful boy," and, to do her justice, it must be acknowledge that she compels the young man to earn his qualifications. Mrs. Grundy has accepted him, and the husband heeds him not. Indeed, he is rather regarded by that individual in the light of an understudy, as he relieves monsieur of many of the social duties which would otherwise interfere with his own engagements, whether of business or of pleasure. There was a time when a married lady of personal attractions would scarcely have ventured to go about anywhere with a good looking young man who was not her husband.

Nowadays we look for the harmless, necessary "tame cat." The fashionable matron takes much pride in the appearance of her cavalier, and to qualify for the position he must in a measure be ornamental as well as useful. Furthermore, he must in no wise be awkward. He must be able to put a cloak around madam's shoulders as well as her maid, and to adjust her opera hood without ruffling her hair. It being part of his duties, too, to attend to her fans, bouquets, opera glasses, programmes, dogs and all such impediments, it is necessary that he should not indulge in the old fashioned occupation of wool gathering, while on no account must be permit himself to cherish the usual masculine aversion to "shopping," for when he is not dispatched alone to execute my lady's orders, which may range from a box at the opera to a box of pearl powder, he is required to be in attendance when she makes the round of dry goods emporiums.

To the onlooker the value of his presence on these occasions appears limited, for it seems that he does nothing but balance himself on the edge of chairs, adjust his tie in every available mirror, and occasionally make mildly facetious and frequently impertinent comments on the goods. At the restaurants he secures luncheon, and being well drilled in madam's likes and dislikes he thus saves her the trouble of choosing her own fare, and the infliction of getting what she detests.

He is useful, too, in finding the carriage after the theatre or afternoon party, and added to all these serviceable if not exactly intellectual qualities are the advantages that he can be snubbed at will; that he never dare grumble like husbands; and that he never bores with the wearisome attention of older men. To what end do these perfumed dandyettes run errands and act as footmen if not to play at being gay Lotharios? Their reward is that they get taken everywhere, and everybody has to treat them with some degree of civility. Then there are in the train of a pretty, or at least, of a popular woman, a distinction which all youths envy. They live on the metaphorical milk and honey of the land, they bask in luxury, and revel in all the best entertainments, pick up "good tips," and eventually, if they are smart, secure a rich bride.—New York Letter.

An Expensive Cigar.

The costliest cigar smoked in New York is said to be a Havana Henry Clay, which is usually sold wrapped in gold or silver foil and which costs $1.25 apiece at retail. As to the cost of manufacture of such a cigar a manufacturer says that it is wholly impossible to make a cigar whose actual cost, with the use of the choicest and most costly material throughout, can exceed twenty-five cents. The cigar retailed in the market for $1 costs the manufacturer about fifteen cents. There is a small added item of expense in stamping, and the boxing may be made more or less costly; but even with these added it will be seen that the profit on the higher grade of cigars is immense.—New York Evening Sun.

A Story of Mr. Astor.

The following story illustrating the Astor philosophy in money matters is told of the late John Jacob Astor by the man who was the other actor in the scene. "I went to Mr. Astor," he said, "with a business proposition which demanded an investment of $100,000 on his part. While listening to the plan he kept groping and feeling about on the floor for something he seemed to have dropped. When I had finished he said readily: 'All right; go on with the affair; I'll furnish the money.' At that instant a man entered to tell him that one of his buildings had just burned down.

"'That happens nearly every day,' he said, with the utmost unconcern, and went on feeling about with great care for that something on the carpet.

"I finally asked him what he had dropped.

"'Why,' he said, raising his head and looking as woebegone as a small boy, 'I dropped ten cents here a few moments ago and I can't find it. If a man's buildings burn down, they are gone and he can't help it, and he is bound to let them go. But a man who deliberately throws away ten cents because he won't take the trouble to find it is not to be forgiven.'"—New York Evening Sun.

Co-operative Housekeeping.

The most successful experiment in co-operative housekeeping is in France, 100 miles north of Paris, at Cuise. It has been in successful existence twenty-nine years, and, beginning with 600 persons, now numbers 2,000. Not only is it an experiment in co-operative housekeeping, but in the care and education of children. The association was founded by one large hearted, large brained man of wealth, who planned the scheme and furnished the capital. But so great have been the profits of the association that the workers now own nearly half of the social capital, and at no distant day will own the whole.—Miller's Journal.

The Board of Aldermen Object to Canada Western Co.'s Request.

A special meeting of the board of aldermen was held last night with Ald. Vigelius acting mayor, to consider the request of the promoters of the Canada Western Hotel Co. for freedom from water rates and taxes for a period of years, as well as a separate sewer to be built leading from the proposed building.

Ald. Wilson hit the nail fairly on the head when he said it would be just as well to inform the promoters at once that the board could not fairly grant the requests, as it would not be just nor equitable to other businesses already established.

Ald. Goodacre was of the opinion that it would have been better to have waited until the building was finished before such requests were made.

The clause of the communication from the promoters, referring to sewerage was discussed, and the following resolution by Ald. Holland was adopted: "That the communication be received and filed and the clerk be instructed to acknowledge the same, saying at the same time that the city is now considering the adoption of a system of sewerage, which, should the citizens approve of it, will provide sewage for the hotel." An additional clause was added, that a temporary sewer for construction purposes might be put in.

The satirical request of Mr. McKeon was dealt with similarly.

A resolution was passed giving residents outside the city limits water at thirty cents per thousand gallons; within the limits at 20 cents, except to small consumers.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE TAX ON PEDDLARS.

The Winnipeg Commercial Says It Is a Relic of Feudalism, &c.

The Commercial, a Winnipeg trade journal, is severe upon our city aldermen for imposing a tax upon commercial travelers. It will be remembered that the by-law was declared bad by Chief Justice Begbie, on the ground that the law discriminated in favor of the outside trader. Local traders have to pay $50 for the half year, while the by-law only exacted $10 from the drummer for what Theo. Davie would call a "foreign" house. This, Sir Matthew Begbie, considered special, or onesided, or discriminatory, and many people will agree with the Chief Justice, although they will not fail to recall to mind at the same time, that a different view was taken by our "learned wigs" upon a point of greater consequence—the school tax upon cities. However, be the law good or bad, the Commercial is of opinion that the people of Victoria are antiquated old fogies for placing such a relic of barbarism upon the statute books of the city. Says this critic:

"The result of this decision is that the tax on commercial travelers in Victoria is likely to be raised to $50 a half year, which will in most instances prove a prohibitory tax. That a tax, which is simply a relic of the old feudal days, when civic governments aped the overbearing of the nobles, by imposing tyrannical restrictions on local trade, should be enacted and enforced in the new Pacific Province is a matter for wonder. In a community of fossils and bigots, such as the city of Quebec is largely supplied with, it would be no matter for surprise. Ideas of two hundred years ago have a firm hold there. But that a city council stupid and fossilized enough to impose a tax that popular opinion wiped out in Great Britain a century ago, can be found in British Columbia reflects adversely upon the progressive idea of the people of that Province. It is a consolation to people of more advanced views that such narrowness brings not only its own cure, but its own punishment; and Victoria like Quebec, if its people follow after ideas of a past age, will have an experience like the latter, namely, sinking into comparative insignificance, while a neighboring city with much inferior natural advantages, will advance to the position of commercial importance which Victoria ought to have held."

The suggestion that Victoria will sink into comparative insignificance if she does not throw down the barriers to hucksters that come this way from Winnipeg and Montreal, is, of course, not any more likely to become verified because it is made by a "trade paper" than if it had appeared in a double-leaded editorial in the Kamloops Sentinel. But we would like to have the Commercial explain upon what grounds it would impose a tax upon, say a merchant tailor in Victoria, while a merchant tailor in Winnipeg, who by means of a house to house canvass does a large trade in Victoria, is untaxed. What right has a corporation to give "foreigners" (vide Theo. Davie) an advantage over their own citizens. We are not arguing in favor of a tax upon the representatives of wholesale firms, who come here to take orders from our merchants; but we are prepared to approve of the impost on "peddlars" who enter into competition with our retail merchants and tradesmen. Until we have Single Tax—or the millenium—it would seem that we cannot have free trade, and until we have free trade in its widest sense, the principle of giving taxpaying citizens protection as against non-tax paying "foreigners" (vide Theo Davie) must prevail.

Chicago's High Buildings.

Chicago is evidently a city of high buildings. A gentleman writing from there states that there are five thirteen-story buildings, one fourteen-story, and one sixteen-story building. The tower of the auditorium building is 41 x 70, and seven stories high. Therefore that building is called 17 stories high by "boomers." Four elevators can be found in the tower, at twenty-five cents each from sight seers, it is paying about $800 per week.

Fire Department Notes.

The large tank for the new gasometer, corner Government and Pembroke streets, was pumped out by the fire engine Deluge.

The new tubes for the steam fire engine Deluge are to be placed in the boiler next week by Engineer Bush.

The individual fire alarms which were ordered a while ago for the married members of the department have all been placed in position and connected with the main circuit wire. Any alarms struck on the big bells will also ring on the small ones, thus calling the firemen without fail. They work very satisfactorily and are a great help to call the men.

JAMES BAY SCHOOL.

Its Closing Exercises—Miss Forrest Presented With an Address.

The last city ward school examination was held in the James Bay school this morning when the pupils under Miss Forrest and Miss Lorimer presented a splendid programme to the visitors. The school stands second among the ward schools and Master Robert Jamieson the highest scholar won Col. Wolfenden's prize for the second highest school. The programme, a copy of which is given below, was very nicely rendered by the little ones, especially the motion songs and marches by the classes.

Closing	School

After the above had been gone through, Inspector Wilson announced the promotions, after which he took occasion to compliment the teachers and pupils on the very creditable showing. He said that everything had passed off very successfully, greatly due, no doubt, to the untiring efforts of Miss Forrest, who during the years she has taught has always been successful. Among the large number of young ladies who have been teaching in Victoria, Miss Forrest was one who had given the department great satisfaction. He then called upon a little girl and boy, who read the following address, and presented Miss Forrest, the retiring teacher with a beautiful fruit dish:

James Bay Ward School, June 27, 1890.

DEAR MISS FORREST—We the pupils of the above ward school meet you here to-day for the last time. We are sorry that you are leaving us, and we thank you for all your untiring efforts in our behalf. Wherever you let your thoughts turn back to Victoria and Victoria friends, we hope you will think kindly of the many little hearts left behind in your second room. Signed in behalf of the pupils by

MAY WARLOCK,
CORA ROSS,
H. JEANIE,
GERTIE MEYER.

Inspector Wilson thanked the pupils for Miss Forrest, and said it showed the high esteem in which she was held by the pupils.

The prizes were presented to the winners by Messrs. Hayward, Wolfenden and Mallandaine. Master Jamieson who won the prize for being second pupil among the ward schools also won a prize for arithmetic which so very generously presented to the second boy.

Trustee Hayward on being called upon to address the pupils said: It was with a great deal of pleasure that he noticed the good order among the scholars. He was very sorry to hear of the retirement of Miss Forrest, who was held in the highest esteem by the trustees and they will lose one of their best teachers in her. He hardly knew where they were going to find one equal to Miss Forrest who had kept up the reputation of James Bay ward school, which in his opinion, although it did not win the prize had the highest average. He asked the pupils to be considerate when the new teacher took charge and study hard to keep up the good name of the school. Before sitting down he called upon the girls to give their bells a good jingle as it put him in mind of something that would happen to their retiring teacher before long and he wished Miss Forrest happiness in her new sphere and the pupils a pleasant holiday.

Trustees Mallandaine and Colonel Wolfenden also spoke of the high esteem in which Miss Forrest was held by parents, pupils, and everyone who had had anything to do with the schools. Following is a list of the prizes and promotions.

In Favor of the Jap.

Mr. Edwin Johnson, Q.U., S. M., yesterday gave judgment in the case of Suma, a Japanese sailor, against the schooner Penelope. After quoting authorities, and explaining the case, Mr. Johnson ends his finding as follows: "It is not proved that the complainant caused the detention of the vessel or loss to it by the assault for which he was punished; and I must, therefore, dismiss the counter claim for damages. The complainant may take an order for $67 to be paid forthwith, and as the defendant has not availed himself of the opportunity given by the order in Harata's case to settle with this man, I shall give costs if applied for." Mr. Walls appeared for complainant, and Mr. Mills for the defence.

The Colored Queen of Song.

The Victoria Theatre will likely be filled on Saturday evening to hear Miss Flora Batson, the colored Jenny Lind. The New York Sun says: "Fully 3,000 people were crowded into Steinway Hall (New York) last night to listen to the peerless mezzo soprano, Miss Flora Batson, who captivated the vast audience with her peculiarly sweet and sympathetic voice. She wore a magnificent crown, studded with pearls and rubies, presented to her as 'Queen of Song' by the citizens of Philadelphia, and last evening Miss Florence Williams, of the New York Age, on behalf of a committee of 100, presented Miss Batson with a superb diamond-cut bead necklace, in token of their appreciation of her as the most successful colored Prima Donna. When Miss Batson bowed her thanks, the 2,000 people burst forth with a storm of enthusiastic applause. Tickets for sale at Waitt's.

Westham Island Notes.

On Friday evening, June 20th, the friends and neighbors, thirty-two in number, met at the school house and proceeded to the bachelor home of Mr. Adsett, to give their esteemed friend a good, old fashioned surprise. The gentleman was found in congenial company, with two of his most intimate friends, enjoying the peace and quietude after stormy and busy day. He was found playing the game of old maid with the cook as an opponent, while the other devoured the novel of Sunshine Mid Tears. It was as if a thunder cloud had broken, but after a few minutes the visitors were invited to remain and the evening was spent in various games. After a sumptuous lunch, provided by the ladies, the company dispersed at midnight, wishing their friend many years of peaceful bachelorhood.

The crops in the vicinity are all thriving, wheat and barley heading out, bidding fair a productive harvest. Haying will commence in a few days.

On Thursday evening, Hubl, the seven-year old son of Mrs. R. Savage, fell from a horse, breaking his left arm near the wrist.

Messrs. Geo. Longden and Wm. Turner, of New Westminster, paid the Isle a flying visit.

The school will close on Friday next with the usual exercise and "hurrah for the holidays."

Near the Edge.

Last evening an unfortunate woman named Grace Harcourt, who has been living in a Broad street bagnio lately, tried to peer into the "dim realms of shade" by taking a big dose of morphine. A physician was called in time, however, and the rash girl rudely brought back from the verge of death. She is now being cared for by charitable friends.

Exportation of Fresh Salmon.

An idea of the extent and value of the fresh salmon export trade from British Columbia to the East may be formed when it is stated that Mr. W. H. Vianen shipped during last month to a single eastern firm fish to the value of $2,600. This is large, but it only comprises a portion of the quantity exported. Messrs. D. W. Port & Co.'s export trade is as large if not larger than Mr. Vianen's, so that it will be seen what an immense quantity of fresh salmon is exported during the season. Mr. Vianen has orders from the East for several hundred barrels of salted salmon, to be delivered later in the season.—Columbian.

A SOLID FOUNDATION.

Most Excellent Work Being Done on the R. C. Cathedral.

Heaps of brick and stone, derricks, lime, cement, sand and dozens of laborers and artisans make a busy scene at the corner of View and Blanchard streets, where the new Roman Catholic Cathedral is being built.

The foundations are going ahead rapidly. Messrs. Elford & Smith who have the mason work in hand, with a large force of men are making quick work. The job is to be a first class one too, as stone from Granite Point quarry of a superior quality is being used, blocks of over two tons weight being common among it. Mr. P. H. Donovan, the architect, the able superintendent of the construction of the building keeps a good lookout that the details of the architect's plans are followed closely. He is ably assisted by Father Durant, who acts as clerk of works on behalf of the church.

The brick work on the basement is being pushed and in the course of two weeks everything will be ready for the corner stone laying, which will be done with fitting ceremonies. The foundations are very deep and wide, and in the opinion of builders, substantial enough for a building of ten times the weight of the one to be placed on them. Mr. Charles McDonald, the contractor in chief, is bound to make a record for good workmanship.

BRIEF LOCALS.

The Day's Doings in City and Province Briefly Related.

Two lots fronting Douglas and View streets have been leased for 99 years by Mr. W. Croft.

Haney the ex-U. S. custom house officer has been acquitted of the charge of embezzling.

Only two drunks faced the police court magistrate this morning. Five dollars and costs in each case.

The stone wharf building at the foot of Menzies street for Messrs. Dexter & Prevost, is fast nearing completion.

A fine dancing floor, 50 x 45 feet, has been laid at Saanich by the agricultural society for the dance on Dominion Day.

The local hardware and agricultural implement stores are at present bearing a very heavy crop of mowing machines and horse rakes.

A little stranger of the male sex, sans teeth, sans hair, but not sans voice, invaded the family circle of Mr. G. W. Biggar last night. He has come to stay.

Large posters are being put up about the city, which state that free car fares and entertainment will be provided to all who wish to visit Anacortes on the Fourth of July.

The largest plate-glass windows in the city were put in H. Saunder's new block on Johnson street this morning. The new block will, when completed, be one of the handsomest in the city.

Several of the members of the Island Wanderers bicycle club have signified it as their intention to go to Vancouver on Dominion Day. The track around Stanley park is said to be first class for wheeling.

A descriptive history of New Westminster and surrounding district is soon to be published by Mr. J. J. Shinnabarger. The subject is a very important one and if properly handled the enterprise should have a handsome profit.

The oldest inhabitant avers that all danger from high water for this season is over. The Maisqui dyke has been voted a perfect success, much to the delight of the people whose lands at this season of the year were usually inundated.

The contractor in excavating for the foundation of the new court house at New Westminster struck a stratum of blue sand. In the opinion of many it will be difficult to get a good foundation if a much greater depth has to be gone.

Last Sunday's Chronicle has full sixty pages. It contains a history of the rise of the Chronicle and biographical sketches of California's noted men. This is the largest paper ever issued in America, with the exception of a 72-page issue of the Chicago Inter Ocean some years ago.

The genuine Mason's porcelain lined top fruit jars and jelly glasses at Shore & Anderson's, No. 107 Douglas street. No trouble to open them.

Thermometer at Cochrane & Munn's. Temperature to-day, 68 deg.

The First Prize Winner

In Russell, McDonald & Co's drawing last night was Mr. Chris. Miller, foreman baker with Young Bros., Government street.

Contract Awarded.

The tenders of Messrs. Moore & Co. for the supply of drugs to the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital has been accepted, and the secretary has officially notified the firm of the fact.

For the North.

The steamer Princess Louise has been taking on freight for the northern canneries and about thirty passengers are on her list for the same places. She leaves this evening under command of Capt. Irving.

Dominion Day.

The C. P. N. will not be able to put an extra boat on the Vancouver route Dominion Day, but Capt. Irving says that the hour of departure from there will most likely be delayed somewhat for the accommodation of visitors. The fares will be single for return.

A Large Gasometer.

The large brick gasometer tank, constructed for the gas works by L. Humber, was finished yesterday. Over 400,000 brick were used in building it. The tank is 83 feet in diameter by 22 feet in depth, and is the largest on the Pacific coast.

Wellington Mines.

Although the strike at Wellington has been going on for the past few weeks still the mines have been steadily working to a small degree, the Free Press says, and about fifty tons of coal is taken to the wharf daily for storage there. It is reported on good authority that quite a number of the hands intend to return to work at the beginning of next week.

Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Eberts, of Chatham, Ont., celebrated their golden wedding on Saturday, June 14th. Among those present were four of those who attended the first wedding in 1840. The aged pair are the parents of Mr. D. M. Eberts, M.P.P. for Victoria District, and Dr. Eberts, surgeon at the Wellington Collieries. The former gentleman was present on the joyous occasion.

There'll be Trouble Yet.

One or two of the fraternity of smugglers, and a party accused of being an informer, had a wordy war on Johnson street this morning, and talk of shooting, killing, and maiming was pretty freely indulged in. The matter did not go further than words, though several of the gentry engaged in the highly lucrative business of evading the revenue are rather hard cases, and there may be a genuine killing some day among them.

Special Card.

As the public have so generously contributed to the success of my great reduction sale, I am induced to continue it for one month longer on the same terms. THE MYSTERY SOLVED.

An Australian Explorer of 1847 Who Was Never Heard of.

Men familiar with Australian history will remember the young German doctor, Ludwig Leichardt, who, nearly half a century ago, travelled for sixteen months in the interior of Australia, far surpassing all his predecessors in the extent of his discoveries.

Just as the notable services of Sir John Franklin amid the Arctic ice were almost forgotten in the absorbing interest of the mysterious tragedy that ended his life, so the memory of Dr. Leichhardt's brilliant success has been dimmed by the long-discussed mystery of his second great undertaking. He was swallowed up somewhere in the thirsty lands of inner Australia, leaving no trace that search parties and explorers have been able to find. Now comes the news that relics of the ill-fated explorer have been discovered in Northwestern Australia, and so much credence is given to the report that the Melbourne branch of the Australian Geographical society has sent an expedition to see if the mystery of 42 years ago is solved at last.

The Wellington Trouble.

Tully Boyce, president of the Miners and Mine Laborers Protective Association of Nanaimo and Wellington, who has been in San Francisco, in the interest of the Wellington miners in their struggle with Dunsmuir & Co., the owners, returned this morning. He reports the situation as practically unchanged and the differences as no nearer a settlement than they were two weeks ago. The boycott which was ordered by the trades of Wellington coal is being enforced, and its advocates think with success.

CAMERON'S
BID FOR BUSINESS,

ARE YOU WILLING to be convinced that you may be wasting money? Or are you like the old lady who was willing to be convinced, but would like to see the person who could convince her?

TO PAY THE PRICES others ask is simply rank nonsense. It is paying a premium to greediness and emptying your purse to fill pockets bulging with plunder.

THAT OTHERS ASK two prices is no reason why you should pay more than one, or that you should suppose that the two price piratical profit plan is associated with every business.

WHEN YOU CAN come into our store, handle our goods, compare them in price and quality, and prove to your own satisfaction that we are living up to our claim of ... price dealing, why don't you come?

GET LOWER PRICES and save money. That's the idea. You can get them. If other stores offer as the our store does. Our war cry is "l... prices." That's our bid for business.

AT OUR STORE you will find as choice a display as you ever looked on. Nothing that belongs to a fine stock is missing—except the usual exorbitant prices. Our prices are very low.
